Thus the record closes with Edwin William Ferguson, born June 4, 1930 at Big Spring, Texas, youngest child of Bernice Miles Ferguson, who was the youngest child of James Christy Miles, who was the youngest child of Mary Cornelia Locey Miles, who was the youngest child of Daniel Locey, the first of our ancestors in America, who was the youngest child of Daniel and Phoebe Locey, both of whom died of small pox on board ship on the long voyage from Scotland to New York before the American Revolution. Here in our own lives we read much of the "Epic of America" romance and sorrow, struggle and tragedy, courage and adventure, success and failure. Some have remained in the "townships"; some have crowded the frontiers. We are the products of elemental forces; the westward urge, church, schools and colleges, politics, and economics, the hunger for land and oil and gold. Scotch at the beginning, we carry in our veins the blood lines of nearly every European race. We have helped to create and maintain "The Melting Pot" for nearly two centuries until we are completely fused into a typical American family.

We Are The Stuff of Which America is Made.
